2019 Logie Coldstone events in words and pictures

Burns Supper

Logie Coldstone celebrated the life, poetry, music and songs of our national bard, Robert Burns, with our usual gusto. Around 70 guests tucked into haggis, neeps and tatties provided by HM Sheridan. The three course meal was expertly served by our trusty volunteers and bar volunteer, Hitesh, kept the refreshments flowing.

Katrina Lovie piped in the haggis and Sandy Moncur compered the evening in his own inimitable way, addressing the haggis with panache. For the second year running, and at short notice, Barry and Elaine Cranna very kindly stepped in and toasted the lassies and laddies, with both speakers raising gleeful laughs and recounting amusing tales about the ups and downs of our quines and loons.

The evening continued with Burns songs, 'Ae Fond Kiss' and 'A Man's a Man for a That', from the Coldstone singing group, beautifully accompanied by Les Inness on piano. The Coldstone Sober musical collective played a selection of Scottish melodies including the Rowan Tree arranged for Scottish small pipes and other instruments. Rachel Mather and Cheryl Davies were in fine form playing a selection of fiddle tunes. Special thanks to Emily Marshall and Ken Booth who entertained us with some sublime solo singing. The evening continued with some lively karaoke and folk trying out the various bagpipes with the multi talented Barry and Katrina. We think Robert Burns would have fair enjoyed himself.

The Duck Race

On a cool but dry day in early May, a crowd gathered by the burn at Logie Coldstone for the duck race. Young and old, regulars and new faces, were all there to cheer on the ducks as they competed for the top three places in each race while their owners anticipated their cash prizes.

While the younger spectators enjoyed the thrill of getting their wellies full of water, the grown-ups enjoyed tea, home baking and catching up with friends and neighbours.

Many thanks to all the organisers of the event, the duck sellers and everyone who helped on the day.

Morven Walk

The last Saturday in May can be very hot, very cold, wet or windy, but this year it managed to be somewhere in between, which, of course, is ideal weather for the annual Morven Walk.

A lively crowd set off, making easy work of the first part of the walk, young and not so young chatting, admiring the scenery and anticipating the day ahead. We made it across the burn without mishap and before we knew it we were stopping for lunch and resting our legs before the climb.

The chatting was definitely more subdued on the next section as we saved our breath for the steep ascent, which doesn't get any easier however many times you do it! It was a great relief to see the cairn, and meet the others who had got there a little faster.

It was a bit chilly and foggy at the top so we didn't linger, heading downhill towards Logie Coldstone quite quickly. After a scramble and a few slips we were on the flat of the Groddie Road and the last stage of the walk.

A fabulous BBQ and a great spread of food was waiting for us at the hall where we took the weight off our feet and enjoyed a few medicinal drinks to celebrate another successful day out on our local mountain. A few years ago Julie Mitchell Mehta's father, Hamish Mitchell, joined the community walk up Morven. He was so taken with the experience that he composed this poem:

Morven

It dominates the sky line between the Don and Dee. Broad shoulders clothed in empty heath and scree, Hunched and powerful with flecks of late Spring snow, It exerts a special fascination, a seed that seems to grow Till with hypnotic force I'm caught within its spell. My head resists its charms but its lure I cannot quell. My eyes keep wandering upwards to its mighty frame To stand upon its summit becomes my determined aim. My fateful choice is made, my heart has won the fight And steel resolve I buckle on to make my journey light. The day arrives; I join the expedition on the mountain track A broad and well trod highway and, easy on my back, My rucksack well provisioned to sustain my day-long walk. On gradients kind we climb and breathing free we talk And share a joke. The youthful in the crowd soon bound So far ahead; my slower pace accepts the middle ground With time to see the curlew circling o'er the moor And to reflect how busy city life, unnatural, is poor Compared to gentle rural rhythms country people know And capture in their souls in pale dawn light and sunset glow. My pensive mood is broken by a sudden noisy clamour That directs me to the track side ditch where glides an adder Uncoiling from its Winter hibernation out-staring us till bored By our unwanted intrusion it flicked its tongue and poured Itself into its hole beneath some heather mantled rocks. A rushing stream now bars my path; the first of many shocks; A log seems but the way across; but fears allayed, well placed there In tumbling flow are stepping stones that with the utmost care And scarce uncertain wobble I bridge the gap with great aplomb. Exhilerated and ignorant of the strenuous effort still to come I stride purposefully onward, start slowing, feel early distress, Relieved as the path eases itself downwards where in the sunless Peat bog snow lingers still and deep in the shadow lost from the rest I pause to recover then push myself forward and finally breast A ridge and, lo, before me sprawl the vanguard eating lunch. So flopping down upon the grass I delve into my pack and crunch Into an apple, followed by some chocolate to sweet the pill of pain, And hope within the short respite my strength I'll now regain. The real ascent has now arrived: I rise and turning to the hill I force myself with ever shortening steps yet steadfast will, And gasping now for breath, I climb more slowly yard by yard Towards the summit still unseen. The going is yet more hard And then the cairn comes into view; the slope is less severe; My "Everest" is won; my feat is greeted with a hearty cheer. My faithful escort is delighted to see me safely there A fitful progress, more of tortoise than of dashing hare, But now the daunting prospect of the long trek down Combined with aching limbs despoil the gilded crown Of panoramic views of rugged hills and loch filled bowl And distant fertile fields. I'm grateful for the walking pole That helps me stay upon a narrow path that twists and turns Round boulders, over squelching bogs that feed the burns And lie in wait for careless feet. I stumble on, untidy heath Ensnares my legs; I hesitate upon a spongy clump of grass And lunge across a sea of oozing mud that I must pass To find the path again. At last below a crumbling house Shows signs of habitation. The raucous cries of nesting grouse Are far behind; With quickening steps, and much raised hopes The final steep descent is scrambled down and gentle slopes Lead on through fields of bleating lambs and watchful ewe And to the tarmac road that guides me to the promised barbeque. I trudge the last two miles, exhausted, leg-worn but fulfilled My goal achieved, my urge to climb is now forever stilled.

O, Morven, so benign you look from Ordie down below, But now I've signed your summit book I feel I truly know You wield upon your tracks the power to challenge and to thrill And win such deep respect that proves you are no ordinary hill. By Hamish Mitchell

Logie Coldstone Fun Games

June 29th saw pucklies o' fowk arrive at the Diack's park for Logie Coldstone Fun Games 2019. The Games were officially opened by Hazel Moncur and Evelyn Smith who, year after year, tend to the flowers surrounding the Logie Coldstone War Memorial. Hazel gave a speech and thanked the organisers and those who give their time to the make the games happen. Thanks again to Linda & John Diack for the use of the park.

The games events were unfortunately curtailed by an extreme thunder and lightning storm however, the fantastic fly cup provided by the Logie Coldstone School PTA offered a dry alternative and later, so did the licenced bar. The Ian Smith Memorial Cup was won by Alice Murphy with her sister Pearl taking second place.

There were not so many stall holders this year; the First Responders kindly came along, the Trust ran a very successful Raffle and the money from the Bottle Stall was given to the Curling Club. Evelyn and Hazel ran the Treasure Hunt and Spin the Wheel stalls with their usual bonhomie. The Aboyne Ices van still managed to make sales before the arrival of the rain and from the hardy souls during the rain. Thankfully, the canopy over the serving hatch proved useful for the Fish & Chip van customers. Whilst most of the adults remained in the shelter of the tents, the children had their own wee game to see who could get the most drookit outside watching the amazing lightning show.

Thanks to all our fun games sponsors

Ailie Robertson, Lever Harp

As part of the Across the Grain and Sound Festivals, Logie Coldstone Hall hosted a visit from Ailie Robertson a multi award winning composer and performer.

We were treated to a lovely hour of relaxing music which showed the versatility of the lever harp and included both contemporary and traditional pieces.

At the end of the Programme the audience were invited to try their hand at playing mini harps Ailie had brought along.

Louise Profeit LeBlanc, Storyteller

We were delighted and intrigued, in equal measure, to welcome Louise for an evening of storytelling as part of the Scottish International Storytelling Festival. Louise is from the Nacho Nyak Dan First Nation of the northwest Canadian territory and was nurtured by the traditional stories of her people. Some of Louise's ancestors hailed from Scotland, including the Profeit family who established the Profeits Hotel, now known as the Loch Kinord Hotel at Dinnet. We heard tales of love, friendship and courage, featuring a gift of new shoes, a Frenchman, an eagle carved box and the wisdom and power of the blue jay bird.

January Quiz

A hearty thanks to Gillean Morrison for organising a fund raising auiz in ear ly January for the past few years. It is just the thing to blow the Hogmanay cobwebs away. Funds raised have been donated to causes close to the hearts of Coldstone families including Meningitis Research; the Lauren Currie Twilight Foundation (Vasculitis research); Forget Me Not Club (Dementia Support); and Logie Coldstone Trust. The next quiz will be held on Saturday January 4th at the hall. Look out for posters/emails with booking details.

Links with the Local Community

At Logie Coldstone School, we value our local community and are committed to building strong links with it. These links bring a wide range of benefits for both pupils and staff and, in particular, have a positive impact on the personal growth, motivation and educational achievement of all pupils. Pupils from the P5-7 have decided to report in this Newsletter on some of our links with the local community over the past year.

Autumn and Winter Terms

All of the P5–P7 pupils researched World War One and the soldiers who fought bravely for our country. With help from the Cromar History Group we researched the soldiers whose names are on the war memorial in Logie Coldstone. The whole school took part in an assembly and we walked down to the war memorial to commemorate everyone on it. We put down a wreath. The wreath had the same message on it as the very first wreath that was ever put down in 1920. In our assembly we sang the same hymn that was sung at the memorial in 1920, 'O God, Our Help in Ages Past'.

Pupils from both classes made Fairtrade gingerbread men and learnt about spices and Fairtrade products. We gave the gingerbread out at the community café.

The whole school visited Migvie Church to look at the Migvie Stone in the churchyard and to view the artwork inside the church. We liked it so much that we decided to hold our Christmas concert at the church. We sang 'Christmas in the Trenches' and the P1- P4 pupils sang 'Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star' in French and played it on the bells. The P5- 7 class sang 'Silent Night' in German.

Spring Term

At the start of term 3 school had a Robert Burns afternoon tea where pupils from P1-7 recited poems, played music and sang songs like 'Auld Lang Syne' and 'A Red, Red Rose'. There was also shortbread and teas and coffees. In term 3 we also celebrated Fairtrade Fortnight with the help of Mrs Ross. (You may have seen Mrs Ross with her Fairtrade stall at the community café.) We made presentations about cocoa farmers and how they deserve a fair price for their cocoa and did them in the community café. We also put up posters and helped run a Fairtrade stall selling Fairtrade chocolate. Everyone was very pleased when the school achieved a second Fairtrade school award, the FairActive Award. P1-7 pupils learned about the rainforest and got a visit from the Critter Keeper. The Critter Keeper brought animals that come from the rainforest such as a sugar glider and a red iguana. The critter keeper was very interesting and it was very exciting. The whole school went on a visit to Duthie Park Winter Gardens. When we were there we went into the Tropical House and the Arid House to the Tropical House and the Arid House to learn about the different climates and plants that grow in them. Pupils learnt about tribes in the rainforest. P1-4 made tribal jewellery and P5-7 pupils got tribal face paint.

In term 3 it was British Science week. Les Ellis and Bob from the Cromar Future Group came to school to do problem solving with electrical circuits with pupils. Jude (Millie's mum) also came to both classes to tell us about her science work at Aberdeen University and to help us investigate how germs spread and how we can help to stop them spreading.

Summer Term

In term 4 all the pupils visited Tarland burn to learn about invasive species and water voles with Estree, the invasive species coordinator from the River Dee Trust, and Jamie from the Dee District Salmon Fishery Board. We learnt how water voles are being threatened by American minks and we got to see some water voles. The water voles were really cuted voles. The water voles were really cute!

Also in term 4 P5- pupils did Bikeability cycle training with Mrs Currie and Matt Donaldson from the Bike Shack in Huntly who tested us on the road. The great news is we all passed our test!

In June Jeanne who is French but lives in Cameroon came to visit the school and be in the P5-7 class for a week. She helped us with our French fashion show. At the end of the summer term we had a big summer talent show for parents/carers and the local community. Pupils did dancing, singing, gymnastics, origami, instrumental acts. We even had Clem and Harrison do trombone on wheels!

This Term

This term we visited Techfest at Robert Gordon University in Aberdeen. Techfest is to learn about STEM. STEM Stands for science, technology, engineering and mathematics. P 2 to 4 pupils learnt about different types of rocks, night and day and even went in a giant dome to see stars. P 5 -7 pupils learnt about different types of rocks, STEM through the ages and Dippy the Dinosaur.

Also this term, pupils from both classes have visited Poldhu Wells and been running in the local environment. The whole school has started to work towards getting a green flag eco award. Anyone in the local community who thinks they can help us in our eco journey, please get in touch with the school.

The school also had a visit from Sam from the Aberdeen Cyrenians. The Aberdeen Cyrenians do lots to help homeless people. All the school is glad to be taking part in their Christmas shoebox appeal.

Next Term

Next term we will be very busy in school. We will be doing K'NEX workshops and Kodaly music every week. The whole school will be celebrating St Andrew's Day with refreshments, Scottish music and dancing. All are welcome and watch out for our posters telling you about it. Pupils in the P5-7 class will be doing a Christmas enterprise and making lots of things to sell at the Logie Coldstone Christmas fair.

If anyone knows of, or can provide, an experience that will enhance the pupils' learning, please get in contact. Likewise, if anyone knows of a way in which pupils can

With a look back to the past year we've navigated the basics of orienteering, led by our own President Rachel Mather; made fabric Christmas angels with Isla from Krafty Neuk, Tarland and hosted Jenny Gow, the founder of Buttony Bear charity – supporting children with stomas. In the new year Les Ellis gave a virtual tour of the Cromar History Group Archive and Katrina Lovie spoke about her excellent work for Scottish Huntington's Association. Our Institute members (and their wee ones) had several successes at the Deeside Bulb show in Aboyne, March, and a high-scoring, if not podium finish for their Combined Effort table. Before the summer break we enjoyed a meal and bingo at the Commercial Hotel, Tarland. We resumed in autumn with Sam from Aberdeen Cyrenians talking about projects helping homeless people in the city and shire. Our ladies are collecting, knitting and crocheting items for Cyrenians to hand out this Christmas, with the school also contributing shoe box gifts and cards. Our recent guest Craig Charles talked about clock making and mending with some fine examples to demonstrate the mechanistic workings of movements. Next meetings are Nov 13th – storyteller Jackie Ross; Dec 11th – Rachel Mather's paper decorations; Jan 8th – artist Quintin Davies; Feb 12th – Alan Melrose's travel stories and Mar 11th – World Book Day. The Reading Group

The Logie Coldstone Reading Group continues to gather every six weeks in the meeting room of the Hall. We now have two book choices for each meeting - one chosen from Aberdeenshire Book Group collection and one suggested by group members. This gives us the flexibility to read books outside the library list while still supporting the library. Members can choose to read either or both books - all very informal. We have read a very varied selection of books this year ranging from Sally Magnusson's The Sealwoman's Gift - set in Iceland in 1600s to The Panoptican by Jenni Fagan - a hard hitting contemporary story about a young girl in care and how the system fails her. Our first meeting of 2020 will be on 10th January at 7.30 pm. New members are always welcome.

A poem/song written last year on the autumn equinox - quarter day by Stuart Bull:

Quarter Day

Breathe the first whisper-kiss, The mill turns, The seasons grind on, Winter's thought stills the air, And the beasts are crying

This darkening year exhales, Brown, brown, brown heather, To the lowering skies to come, Cold, cold ancient air

Breathe the first whisper-kiss, The mill turns, The seasons grind on, Red and yellow the ground, And the crows ride the wind,

This darkening year exhales. Brown, brown, brown heather, To the lowering skies to come Cold, cold ancient air

To the lowering skies to come, To the roaring skies to come, To the ancient skies to come, Cold, cold ancient air
